

Artist Name: Sean Sage

I am currently a Junior in Calvin University (C.U.I.) pursuing a Bachelor's in Human Services and Faith & Community Leadership.

I have learned to appreciate my "downtime" even more since starting college. Between my academic obligations (opportunities) and the less-than-normal environment that is prison, relaxation is like a hug for my soul.

Thus, finding positive, productive, and new ways to make the most (no pun intended) out of my free-time gains value.

I have begun to experiment with what few materials we have access to here in my exclusive gated community. I like the restorative ideology behind both the reuse of scrap material, as well as creating something that someone may enjoy.

Any small chance I have to leave a better footprint, is a welcome juxtaposition to the messy, miserable footprints of my past.

As a former professional boat captain, surfer, sailor, and fisherman, suffice it to say the water is my happy place. This nautically themed box is a reminder of the peace and beauty found offshore and perhaps a place to stow your keys. It was fun to make and hopefully will find a happy spot on your table or shelf.
