

Artist Name: Shane Westbrook

The inspiration for this came from a belly dresser that my grandmother had when I was young. It reminds me more of an old pot belly stove than this Box, however this material is very difficult to bent in multiple angles. The lid is 3 layers, and the back is one double thick piece. The legs and base are made from one piece that is cut and bent into shape then glued onto the drawer section.

I have inserted a removable mirror incase it ever needs replaced. The chains are of an old necklace. The hinges are cardstock and Q tip sticks,

The Brand on the lid is SRW, my initials, intended to look fancy. The where carve out by using a push pin and nail clippers.

The swerks on the drawers are very thin cuts of chip board glued and painted on.