

Artist Name: JASON W. BROWN

Hello! Thank you for looking at my paintings. I'm relatively new at it, just under two years. I'm not yet where I want to be, but I enjoy "slipping away" into my painting. I come up with thoughts in my mind or pictures that I see and I believe I can do that. lol. Honestly, though, I'm my own worst critic because I feel like too many mistakes are made or "it doesn't look exactly like the photo." There are times when I see other paintings from others and how beautifully detailed and smooth they are that I get discouraged in my own work. I'm trying to remind myself that my paintings are uniquely my own, in my own fashion and style. I didn't even want to put a price value on them because they weren't painted for monetary value. If any of my paintings are selected, I'd be honored, but in the moment of creation, they each had precise purpose. Da Vinci, Leonardo, Rembrandt I am not. I'm just me. Thank you for looking at my paintings.

Sincerely,
Jason W. Brown
