I'm a libra and like my zodiac sign says, I really do try to find balance in my life and others around me. I did the scales because when you spend over a decade in prison. One of the most thought about things is ruminating about the past, and whether or not we are over all Good or Evil. The bible states one should not judge or they too will be judged. So I think about those who judge everyone for so many things. Yet if we could judge all these past choices... what would we find?

Lastly, I chose to only use pen/pencil to represent the way the world tries to see everything as Black or white when there is always a gray area as well.
