

Artist Name: Mangatar

I've had the urge to draw since (like most) I was a kid, however since I felt I was never any good at it I found other things to occupy my time. (Friends, Bites, Gaming) However I've still always had the urge, it would get triggered by a feeling or a scene in a book or some idea someone would share with me. It wasn't until I came to prison that I found the time to practice. I choose manga style for two reasons, I like manga and see it a good entry into drawing, although I find myself as I draw wanting to add more and more detail I know I'm still a far way from good quality portraits I continue to learn, practice and enjoy the journey. In the piece "closed" the pocket of her hoodie has the letters MMCH which stands for Mickey Mouse Club House but because Disney can and will sue for everything I chose it to mean Make Memories Choose Happiness. Also you'll notice two sets of hinges, the big ones you would expect on a door like that but much like the "magic" they're fake, the real ones are the smaller ones in between. It talks on the illusion.
