HMS Victory Full Sails

I enjoy painting because it allows me to exhibit my creative abilities while at the same time it allows me to relax from both my work as a GED tutor for others and as a break from my college classes to complete my Masters Degree in Psychology. I try to do different themes or topics for my pieces my roots of painting was dragons and the fantasy realm, but this year I have started to do some basic medieval work with knights on horse back. I have also found an affinity for nautical works which many people liked my previous work of sailing ships. Its easy to get lost in the detailing of all the rigging of a sailing ship, reminds me of all the neuron connections that makes our brain work. I have tried to become more detailed at adding depth to my pieces as our world is not flat, that idea went out years ago!
