Results of Broken Love

I never knew that I had this gift residing inside me to artistically display my emotional state of mind this way. It wasn't until I was attempting to sketch a stamp sized picture of a cartoon character for my nephew, that I realized I could draw more than just heart and 3 dimensional boxes. One day in an effort to put a smile on someone special face, I picked up a pencil and began to draw. To my surprise she and other's loved it. It was then, and even now I continue to draw, pushing my ability to advance my creativity in everything I draw.

This piece was drawn to pay homage to everyone who's ever been hurt by that special someone you knew you loved. It is a reminder to anyone who tells someone they love that they'll never hurt them, then does the exact opposite. This is "The Results of A Broken Love!"
