18, Bright Future - Distant Past

Montney is an artist who was locked up since age 16, while entering his 29th year it is his goal to be a better person and artist. His art ranges his views on the prison experience to thoughts of the past and future. He is also skilled in many mediums, and enjoys trying to bring a subject to life with paint or pencil.

This year Montney hopes to show his hope for the future of his art is "opportunity needs preparation" while he shows his imagination and skill in the collage painting "Educational Imagination". The donation of "Bright Future - Distant Past" is Montney's taking a risk with experimenting with a loose, wet technique and abstract style.

In the 17th year of showing art with PCAP, this show has provided Montney with insight into his art and self, but ^{also} opened up his world to good friends and the possibilities of using his art to help his future.
