

Artist Name: ROACH

This piece is actually my very first painting. This piece just represents happiness and innocence in it's purest form. When I started this painting I was in a bad mental health crisis and I didn't actually sign up for the class. A friend of mine signed me up by surprise. I was mad but after seeing other artists work and how they could turn thier emotions into art it really inspired me. I connected with a part of me that was suppressed and hidden. I found happiness again and this just makes me happy and want to smile. And I just want to share that happiness with others.
