My Imaginary Friend

This painting is about how important our imagination is to the overall well being of our mind, body and soul. Normally when a child has a stuffed toy bear he is small to everyone else but to the child he takes on a whole different light. It's just a fun piece on how she sees the world around her. To her her little bear is 6^{ft} tall. In her mind she's not ~~so~~ detailed like in a dream. We see everything else in a dream detailed but ourselves, so she sees the environment detailed just not herself and her friend.
