A couple of years ago my niece asked me if I could paint her a picture of Hogwarts. Naturally I said yes because I'm here to spoil. That's how I ended up with a picture of Hogwarts Castle. Then I was watching "Harry Potter and the Goblet of Fire" and thought "They really cheated those dragons by having them chained up." So I came up with this piece with the dragons getting retribution for making a mockery of them. I focused on the Great Hall because it is the most iconic part of the castle. I removed the rest of the castle and added the lake and more rocks to bring more depth to the piece. Thank you for taking the time to look at my art and I hope you enjoyed it.
