The maze of life is not perfect, so we humans tend to have struggles where it takes us through the hurdles, bumps, and bruises. Each circle represent a feeling or situation, the colors represent the emotions, of sadness, happiness, anger, now that i have a way to express myself through art. the thread is the entanglement of my life. that has really given me a way out of doing things different such as a better way to share my time with other's that has some of the bad choices i made with not going places around the world to get a great education, career, and help people.
