

Artist Name: Jim

I chose to do a few portraits again this year of famous people. My mom likes Elvis and Marilyn Monroe, so that's why I chose those particular people. I've submitted pencil portraits before, and they went over well. Last year, I submitted cards and cartoons — it was a nice change of pace, but I had to get back to the portraits. This will be my last PCAP event before I go home after 13 years, so I'm just grateful to be able to participate and share the talent that God gave me, maybe make a few dollars to help me get back on my feet next summer. The technique I use for portraits is unique and I hope to teach it in the future. It's a form of measurement and triangulation. If you can do a little math and have a good eye, practically anyone can draw portraits using my method.
