

Robert Hills

46-20

Winter

I Don't Really Know what to Say this year. Every year things change, laws, minds, perspectives, but the most thing we in here notice year after year is how the number of family and friends decrease. I think that is why I have noticed more paintings and drawings with family in them, a way to remember them, to express a feeling that is mostly hidden in a place like this. Art is expression in more ways than just an image, here it is an outlet to show feelings most people hide in here so in the eyes of others they look strong, like nothing bothers them. Some even try to hide their emotion in their work, but it is there. I have spoke with many artists and have drawn a lot of designs, painted cards, T-shirts, and they all have ~~the~~ the same thing in common..... They are always thinking of family and friends!