Asian Woman Strong, American Dream

Asian Woman Strong

I feel extremely proud to see the woman movement achieve what they have today, but at the same time I feel sad because of the racist against asian still havent change. Asian women stood side by side with all women as the women movement grow, and yet asian women are treated as if they're only a after thought. Thats why I chose to do this painting because I want to show the world that asian women are no one's after thoughts.

American Dream

To achieve the American dream is to be able to be who you choose to be in life.

The beauty of the American dream is that everyone has a right to have their own dream.

There's no right or wrong when it comes to your American dream because that is your right.

To assimilate to the "America" (Red & Blue) and fulfill the American dream doesn't mean that you have to let go of your homeland in your heart. When you accept that all the rights you have in America's constitution and believe others have those rights too then you have assimilated to "America" (Red & Blue).

America is a great country because of its diversity. If you take away everything that makes you a Japanese woman, then how could you help make America be the great country as it is today. You're not just going to deny yourself the beauty of Japan, but also everyone in America the opportunity to know how beautiful Japan is too.
