Mother of Dragons Daenerys Targaryen "Khaleesi"

I have been in prison since 1992. I look forward to the PCAP Art Exhibition every year. I have been a participant in most of my incarceration years. When I met Buzz Alexander, he treated me like we were already friends. He treated me like I didn't have the label as a convict. My first pieces I submitted were graphite drawings. I purchased colored pencils and advanced my work a little at a time until I was able to order acrylic paints. On one of the PCAP visits to the facility for accepting artwork for the show, Buzz questioned why I don't draw pictures anymore. My answer was, "more people are interested in paintings". He just smiled and nodded. It's been a long time since I sat down and done a serious drawing. Although it's not a masterpiece and I know there is more to improve on, it was fun to get back to basics. I picked this subject because I watched most episodes and it's still a popular series. I don't know if Buzz actually liked my drawings but I'll never forget him "Khaleesi" from "Game of Thrones" Dedicated to Buzz.
