

Artist Name: aCiD NiNe

For a lot of the formative years of my life I saw myself as trash; irredeemable and void of any real purpose. But as I got older and truly experienced life, I began to cobble together parts of me that I saw as valuable, and now I try to share that with the world. My art is a reflection of my journey; it is, in its individual pieces, discarded trash, ~~that~~ is seen by the world simply as the garbage thrown away. However, I put it together and give it new meaning, making it into something that someone out there will find beauty in. Might that someone be you?
