Threw all my years of producing and collecting art I've come to better understand this life style that some people are blessed enough to live. To some an artist's work is nothing more than a beautiful piece, but for me I know it's so much deeper. For all artist's, young or old, knowing or not, their work is an expression of one's self, like a piece of their soul, instilled with love and hate, pain and passion. To have society truly understand ART they must first understand the ARTIST. Hopefully one day more of the world will come to appreciate and understand the power within the art that is vastly produced each and every day and stop just seeing a picture.
