

Artist Name: Joe Frappier

Both pieces of artwork that I am showcasing today reflect on my love for the free spirit.

The first peace/piece (haha) is called Earth, Water, Fire. I chose this from a picture that my sister sent me after carefully piling the rocks and snapping the picture with perfect timing. I feel the picture transformed into charcoal beautifully as it draws the viewer to form their own interpretation. For me, the stacked rocks show harmony and balance, the wind creating the waves is soothing and the setting sun is proof that all these things were made cohesively. Thank you God.

The second piece of artwork represents the free spirit in a very sassy way therefore I have named it Fiery. The title presumes fire but can be translated into a multitude of meanings; fiery heart, fiery as in very passionate, fiery as in unrestrained, "The fiery spirit of his forefathers." W. Irving. All of the aforementioned could very easily be construed as bad but I truly believe that with a heart deprived of impurity they will help lead you to a free spirit. Thank you Holy Spirit.
